

Beard Growth Kit

CONCEPT SUMMARY

This performance-driven Meta script targets cold traffic by leading with radical native transparency, voicing the exact skepticism ("online scam") shared by the target market. By mapping a low-friction friend-recommendation angle into a high-satisfaction product demo, it normalizes the routine while using an unpolished "Week 3" double-take transformation loop to validate the mechanism and drive safe sales through a secure 30-day risk reversal.

Video Script Table

Time & Segment	Audio Script (Voiceover Copy)	Visuals & Text Overlays (TOS)
0:00 - 0:03 (The Scam Hook)	"I'm not gonna lie... I thought beard rollers were the biggest scam on the internet."	• Visual: Creator sitting casually, phone-cam angle, slightly messy background. NOT looking at the camera initially, looks up mid-sentence. Handheld feel. Slight zoom push on 'scam'. No intro. Hard cut straight to the creator speaking. • Text on Screen: POV: You've tried everything for your beard. • Editing Notes: No intro. Hard cut straight to the creator speaking. Handheld feel. Slight zoom push on 'scam'.

0:03 - 0:08 (Problem Phase)	“My beard had this patch right here for years. I just accepted it was genetics. I thought that was just... my face.”	• Visual: Cut to a photo of the creator’s beard before using the product, visible patchy area and beard gaps in natural lighting. Then back to the creator’s face, with a slightly uncomfortable expression. Show the real before photo full screen for a moment before cutting back to the creator. The image should feel raw and authentic, not polished or studio-shot. • Text on Screen: The patch that wouldn't fill. • Editing Notes: Show the real before photo full screen for a moment before cutting back to the creator. The image should feel raw and authentic, not polished or studio-shot.
0:08 - 0:13 (Skepticism Layer)	“A mate kept sending me this beard kit. I ignored it for like two months. A roller? For your beard? Come on.”	• Visual: Cut to phone screen showing the product like he's scrolling and found it. Then back to the creator, slight eye-roll energy. Phone scroll B-roll feels native like an Instagram DM or link being sent. • Text on Screen: Ignored it. Twice. • Editing Notes: Phone scroll B-roll feels native like an Instagram DM or link being sent. The eye-roll should feel genuine, not performed.
0:13 - 0:20 (No-Risk Trial)	“But then I saw the 30-day trial. No-risk. So I thought ... fine. Whatever. I'll try it.”	• Visual: Hands-on product demo roller being sanitised, rolled across the jaw area, serum applied. Close-up of the roller on skin. No cuts, one smooth take. Keep the demo natural, not a tutorial. The routine should look satisfying, not technical. • Text on Screen: 30-day trial. Nothing to lose. • Editing Notes: Overlay the '30-day trial' text as the product appears. Keep the demo natural, not a tutorial. The routine should look satisfying, not technical.
0:20 - 0:26 (The Shift Frame)	“Week three, I'm looking in the mirror, and I'm like... wait. The patch is actually filling in. I genuinely did a double-take.”	• Visual: Creator faces a genuine shift in energy. Slightly surprised expression. B-roll of him looking in the mirror. Then a relaxed, confident face shot. Mirror B-roll should feel unscripted, like he just wandered past and noticed. • Text on Screen: Week 3. Something shifted.

		• Editing Notes: Slow down slightly here. Let the emotional beat breathe. Mirror B-roll should feel unscripted, like he just wandered past and noticed.
0:26 - 0:34 (Mechanism Proof)	"I know this sounds like every other ad. But I genuinely didn't expect this. The kit uses a microneedle roller to stimulate the follicles, and a serum that actually gets absorbed. It's the first thing that made sense to me."	• Visual: Before photo of patchy beard (genuine, low quality is fine) → current beard shot. Creator back on camera, relaxed and confident. Before/after should be quick 1.5s each. Don't linger. • Text on Screen: Before → After. Real results. • Editing Notes: Before/after should be quick 1.5s each. Don't linger. Creator explanation should feel like he's telling a mate, not reading a script.
0:34 - 0:38 (Call To Action)	"They've got a 30-day risk-free trial. That's genuinely the only reason I bought it. Link's below."	• Visual: Product flat-lay clean but not overly styled. Then the creator is back on camera, pointing down at the link area. End card: product image + 'Barbarossa Brothers' brand name + '30 Days Risk-Free' + CTA button. • Text on Screen: 30-Day Risk-Free Trial → Shop Now • Editing Notes: End card: product image + 'Barbarossa Brothers' brand name + '30 Days Risk-Free' + CTA button. Keep it clean. 3-4s hold.

META AD COPY BLOCKS

Primary Text:

Still dealing with a patchy or uneven beard?

Most guys think it's genetics... but that's not always the full story.

This beard growth system is designed to support better circulation and help improve the appearance of beard density over time using a microneedle roller + serum combo.

30-day risk-free trial included if you want to try it.

Headline:	Still dealing with patchy spots?
Description:	30-day risk-free

CTA Button:

Shop Now