

Context:

This is a 4-email cold outreach sequence written for solar installation companies that want to generate more quote-ready homeowners and build a more predictable install pipeline.

The sequence is designed to start a conversation around paid ads as a client acquisition channel, while speaking directly to common pain points like relying on door-knocking, referrals, inconsistent lead flow, empty sales calendars, and low-intent homeowners.

Email 1 includes two different variations for testing, followed by three short follow-up emails that continue the same angle with simple, direct CTAs.

Email 1 (First Variation)

SL: {{firstName}} - quick one

Hi {{firstName}} -

Curious - is your install pipeline still mostly door-knocking and referrals?

Reason I ask: we help solar companies get a steady flow of quote-ready homeowners every month through a repeatable paid ads system, so they're not relying on door-knocking, referrals, or random busy weeks to keep installs booked.

Could I send over a short personalized video on how it all works?

Cheers,

Alex

Email 1 (Second Variation)

Hey {{firstName}},

We help solar companies build a predictable pipeline of quote-ready homeowners using our paid ads system.

We've already done this for more than 87 solar companies in Arizona, so they...

- Never rely only on door-knocking or referrals
- Build a more predictable homeowner lead channel
- Book more solar appointments consistently each month

Thought it could be of interest - could I shoot you more info on how it all works?

Cheers,

Alex

Follow-up 1

Hey {{firstName}} - did my last email go through?

Curious if getting more solar installs is a goal for you this upcoming month.

Are you the right person to send over a video on how it could work for {{companyName}}?

P.S. We're getting our clients 60 new installations in less than 3 months, guaranteed.

Cheers -

Alex

Follow-up 2

Hey {{firstName}} - bump on my last email.

Are you the right person to talk to about getting more quote-ready homeowners booked into your calendar each month?

Cheers -

Alex

Follow-up 3

Hey {{firstName}} - haven't heard from you, so I assume adding in a new way to get clients isn't relevant right now.

If you're tired of...

- Relying on referrals and door-knocking makes your install pipeline hard to predict.
- Getting “solar leads” who are curious, but not ready to take action.
- Having good sales reps with empty calendars.
- Wasting time chasing homeowners who ghost, no-show, or never had real intent.
- Competing with other solar companies for the same homeowners and getting dragged into price battles.

This could be a fit.

Reply YES if interested, and I can send over more info on how it all works.

Cheers,

Alex
